2023 New Taipei and Beyond — Polyphony City

“New Taipei and Beyond” commenced in 2021. In our first year we investigated the art history of New Taipei. In 2022, we began to reflect on the interaction and development of arts and culture, in the context of our locality, natural landscape and industrial economy. This year, we have come up the concept of “Polyphony City,” a concept that borne out of the intersection of our time and environment. We have specifically organized six public programs of varied formats, inviting everyone to explore the various urban, cultural and historical landscapes of our City. We offer you different ways to approach New Taipei, to experience the “multi-centered” and “polyphonus” cultural development of our vast city.

The first program will inaugurate in Fuzhong 15 on April 30, with the other five to follow in May.

Program no 2 will launch at Auspic Paper, titled “Performance of the surface- Duo of traditional paper mills and contemporary arts.” This program comprises a public panel and exhibition focuses on the new artistic books co-created by artists and paper mills after the transformation of the paper manufacturing. Guan-Ming Lin, artist and designer, and Wayne Cheng, CEO of Auspic Paper and art supporter, will lead the discussion.

Program No 3, which will take place on May 07 at Yonghe Arts Factory, is titled “ Factories give birth to modern arts- The boundaries of our contemporaneity.” Artists Yung-chih Lee and Mia Liu will lead the discussion with architectural scholar and writer Yu-Chih Hsiao. You will also have the rare opportunity to follow a guided tour around the artists’ studios.

Program No 4 will be launched on May 13 near Plum Tree Creek, taking you to “Make a pot of biodiversi-tea-understanding the challenge of our nature.” Here, artist and veteran curator Mali Wu will collaborate with Weed Day, a contemporary foraging group, and take you through a journey of foraging, exploration, discussion and tea-making.

On May 20, you will be able to participate Program No 5 at Wonderkid. The program, “Diaspora and (re)location-we learn how to mix our salad,” will take you to the Myanmar Street in Zhonghe. Following the guided tours of Your Bros. Portfolio, a cinema production team, and Wanli Yang, a local specialist and second-generation migrant, you will have a glimpse of the kitchens and food studios.

Program No 6 will occur on May 27 at New

Taipei City Art Museum’s Artistic Street C2. Our program is titled “Creative life in the margin- Residential and cultural landscape in Sanying River Settlement.” Director Singing Chen and urban planning researcher Rui-Mao Huang will deliver lectures, discussing the development of urban landscape and imagination of future living environment.

All “New Taipei and a Beyond” programs are free. Bookings are essential.

Starting on the second half of April, the 2023 New Taipei Reading Festival’s theme is “Design, Our New Daily Life.” The New Taipei City Art Museum will be the center of the festival and hosting a series of programs in conjunction with the Municipal libraries and other cultural institutions. Our programs will help us to share our journey through books, reimagining our daily life. When all kind of individuals and their ideas merge in Yingge, any combination of them will transfer to a unique set of code through reading and design, creating energy, vitality and boundless possibilities. Readers will be able to create their own innovative daily life when they begin to read the design pattern in life. It is this energy that will stimulate New Taipei City to change and develop.

Our festival comprises exhibitions, reading salon, family activities and day tours. What’s more, we will enrich your auditory pleasure through the special concerts on May 6th and 7th. During these days, we invite Golden-Melody winner Eve Ai and rising star Ben Wu, the voice of the new generation The Crane, and more, to share with us their day-to-day inspiration. Our concerts also feature many other emerging DJs and street performers, who will co-create an artistic daily life with you, experiencing the energy created through our own design. ### Black and White Virtuosity: The Beauty of Ceramic Utensils Special Exhibition

This exhibition is a team-effort collaboration between the Yingge Ceramics Museum, the National Museum of Natural Sciences, the National Museum of History and the Hwa Kang Museum of Chinese Culture University. It showcases up to 141 black and white ceramic utensils, covering 3000 years of civilization. These include the precious Longshan black pottery of the New Stone Age, white pottery from the Shan and Zhou dynasties, glazed ceramic works of different dynastic periods, as well as artefacts from central Taiwan’s grey-black pottery heritage site, dating back to the late New Stone Age; last but not least, the collection also includes contemporary ceramic works such as smoke-fired ceramics, Tenmoku tea bowl, modern designed tea sets, vases, and various ceramics artworks.

Prehistoric artefacts and contemporary smoke-fired artworks don’t apply glaze, and are all fired outdoors to create a rustic black surface; the Tenmoku tea bowls distributes a dazzling black glaze, allowing these bowls to complement the tea foams; the flower vases are darkened either by a dominating, metallic sheen or a reserved matte finish; as for the Dinyao porcelain, was a result of social trend for purity. The Dinyao porcelain from the royal collection, were produced by one of the five prominent kilns from the Song dynasty. These Dinyao pieces epitomize the highly exclaimed whiteness and the thin translucent craftsmanship, which are the fruits of the upmost ceramic mastery. It is time to pay us a visit at the Yingge Ceramics Museum to enjoy the visual symphony of our ceramic treasures.
